CLINICAL INTERPRETATION

The respondent's BSI symptom profile reveals a pattern and magnitude to be considered in the clinical range, and qualifies her as a positive clinical case.

Her symptomatic distress levels are clearly defined as being in the clinical range, which suggests that a more intensive and detailed evaluation of mental status is called for.

This individual's intensity of distress is extremely high and she has endorsed a marked number of symptoms.

The respondent reveals scores on multiple primary symptom dimensions that are elevated and in the clinical range. With an extremely large number of syndromes elevated, such as in this case, it is very difficult to interpret score patterns unless one or more dimension scores are unusually high. It is clear that the respondent is experiencing significant psychological difficulties, and she should be more intensively evaluated.
